LOUISIANA'S NEW ELECTION LAW CREDITED TO AIKEN

Engineer Melville and Comrades to be Tendered a Reception upon Their Arrival at Home—Indian Reservation Troubles.

[illegible]

New York, Aug [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] reason would be [illegible] the illustrious com[illegible] has [illegible] leisure of his [illegible] gone home [illegible] of the [illegible] party is [illegible] who as a [illegible] Hagerstown to [illegible] cient known [illegible] pute the palm of [illegible] and has his little [illegible] these pillars of [illegible] referred inquiry [illegible] that when the performance [illegible] appropriately open what is [illegible] known as the amusement season.

Aiken's Election Law.

New York, Aug [illegible] [illegible] editorial: It is said that ex-Congressman Aiken of [illegible] is the author of the [illegible] law in Louisiana. The inventor, whoever he may be, is entitled to the credit of having distinguished [illegible] in the great struggle for the best machinery to prevent a free ballot. Aiken's plan is far simpler than brutal and troublesome bulldozing and [illegible] tissue stuffing of ballot boxes. The [illegible] Louisiana election law provides that no ballot shall be received or counted unless printed on paper of a peculiar quality, tint and thickness, to be furnished by the secretary of state after [illegible] application. This is simple indeed. The secretary of state is a democrat and he controls the [illegible] materials of which the alleged free [illegible] ballot is composed. He decides from this time forth who shall cast the vote in Louisiana. Should this plan be adopted throughout the southern states, rifle clubs may be disbanded, night riders permitted to stop at home and the use of tissue paper be abandoned—in effect a partisan officer will cast the vote of the entire state, and a solid south be once more made secure.

A Reception in Preparation.

New York, Aug 21.—The Tribune says arrangements are being perfected by Chief Engineers George Sewell and Chas. H. Loring, of the United States navy, for a reception to Chief Engineer Geo. W. Melville, of the ill-fated Arctic exploration steamer Jeannette, who is expected to arrive in New York in about three weeks. Commodore Upshur, of the Brooklyn navy yard, will give permission to the reception committee to use navy yard tugs to meet Engineer Melville, and Noros and Ninderman, the two seamen who are accompanying him. A large number of officers of both the line and staff of the navy will accompany the reception committee down the bay and will escort the Jeannette survivors to the Fifth Avenue hotel, where a public reception will take place. Naval officers stationed at Washington are about to make arrangements to give them a reception upon their arrival there. Secretary Chandler will not appoint a court of inquiry on the loss of the Jeannette as provided by act of Congress until Engineer Melville arrives home.

A Foolish Swede.

Chicago, Aug 21.—Robert Helling, one of the Swedes arrested here some time ago for a trivial offense, and who confessed the murder of Sophia Dahlberg in Stockholm, Sweden, in 1875, now denies any knowledge of the murder of Sophia Dahlberg, beyond what he learned from Swedish papers at the time. He says when he and Roberts[on] were arrested here, they believed the police had spotted them for a crime committed by them in [illegible] and they [illegible] up this confession and Robertson's alleged attempt at suicide in order to divert suspicion. Helling says he can prove he did not kill the woman because he was in prison at Stockholm at the time. Meanwhile Robertson has made a written confession, stating that Helding smothered the woman with a pillow, while he (Robertson) stood outside as a watch.

Cabinet Meeting in New York.

New York, Aug 21.—An informal meeting of the cabinet was held at President Arthur's house to-day. All members except Secretary Teller and Postmaster General Howe were present. No business was transacted, and the session was more of a social one than otherwise. The cause of meeting as explained by Secretary Folger and Attorney General Brewster was that as Secretary Lincoln, Chandler and Folger and the president were in New York, Secretary Frelinghuysen at Newark and Attorney General Brewster at Long Branch, it was thought best to meet and inquire whether anything in either of the departments required joint action. Nothing of this nature came before the meeting. Both Secretary Folger and Attorney General Brewster denied that a change in the heads of departments had been discussed.

The Northern Pacific Dividend.

New York, Aug 21.—In reply to statements that no dividend on Northern Pacific Railroad stock was declared, because of the hostile attitude of Congress and a desire to avoid the animosity of the next Congress, which might be fostered by an appearance of prosperity of the company, a prominent executive officer of the Northern Pacific declares the statement untrue; that the question of a dividend was not discussed at the meeting of directors, and that no apprehension of hostile action at Washington would have deterred the board from declaring a dividend, but there being no financial question in the way.

The Dorsey Letters.

Chicago, Aug 21.—Washington special: It seems publication of the Dorsey letters is to continue at intervals for some time to come. It is known to friends of Garfield they fairly represent the pressure which was brought to bear upon him from the stalwart division of the party. These letters also treat in the main of the composition of the cabinet and the attitude which it was urged should be assumed toward Conkling. There is also a later series from the same quarter in regard to the New York contest after the nomination of Collector Robertson and resignation of Conkling.

The San Carlos Agency.

Denver, Col., Aug 20.—In an interview with P. P. Wilcox, the newly appointed agent to the Indian agent at San Carlos, denies he refused to take charge of San Carlos agency, but says Pangburn, the acting agent, had no authority to turn the agency over and Mr Wilcox returned to Denver to await advices from Washington, which he received to-day as follows:

"P. P. Wilcox, Denver—Return to San Carlos. Pangborn will turn over property to you August 31st.
H. PRICE, Commissioner."

Red Cloud's Misdeeds.

Omaha, Aug 21.—Agent McGillicuddy telegraphs from Pine Ridge agency that he is assembling all the Indian police and will probably arrest Red Cloud, Woman's Dress and one or two other chief conspirators and hold them until further developments. He feels confident of the loyalty of the police and a great majority of the Indians. He renews his request that Red Cloud and others inciting trouble be sent to Leavenworth military prison and asks transportation and escort for them after their capture.

New York Notes.

New York, Aug 20.—A letter from Havana states that the American schooner Dauntless was searched on the 11th inst by armed and uniformed men who were in quest of a delinquent Spanish sailor. The searching party had no authority to act as it did and the subject is to be investigated.

An accident occurred on the New York side of the Hudson river tunnel this afternoon by blowing out of a bulkhead. No person was injured but work will be delayed several days.

Pullman's Wheat Deal a Canard.

Chicago, Aug 21.—A local paper in an article published August 9, stated that Geo. M. Pullman had been largely interested in the July wheat deal through Messrs Wm. T. Baker & Co. The latter firm publishes a card in which it is positively denied that Pullman had any connection directly or indirectly with the matter. This denial Pullman confirms and adds that he has never had any such transaction with Baker & Co., or with any other firm.

Cutting the Rates.

Chicago, Aug 20.—Officials of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad state that they had a hand in the last fight and have [illegible] reducing the passenger tariff [illegible] competitive points in Iowa [illegible] schedule, but the following [illegible]: To Carson $14, Davenport $[illegible], Rock Island [illegible], Moline $5 70, Muscatine $6 [illegible] Pacific coast points come into this reduction also.

Fine Grain from Dakota.

Chicago, Aug 21.—Rufus Hatch and party, returned from their trip to the northwest over the Northern Pacific and Canadian Pacific [illegible] day and exhibited [illegible] grass which attracted much attention. All were very nearly ready for the sickle, the wheat and oats being plump and vigorous [illegible] specimens come from Dakota.

Indian Troubles.

Acting Secretary of the Interior Joslyn has discovered that Red Cloud of the Pine Ridge agency was angry because his band was scattered and his followers not numerous enough. Like other disgusted politicians, he is very mad and ugly. He has found a supply of whisky, the excessive use of which has caused him to pick a quarrel with the agent, who has ordered Red Cloud to be confined in the guard house.

Acting Secretary Joslyn yesterday received a report from Governor Tritle, of Arizona territory, in relation to the alleged Indian raids in that part of the country. He states all is quiet in Arizona with the exception of raids by small bands of Indians from San Carlos agency, in one of which five citizens were killed, but the perpetrators have escaped punishment. A feeling of insecurity exists however among persons living near the reservation and work has been abandoned on some mining property near Clifton. Inability to get teams to them are reasons for stopping work. Although miners in one or two places have been threatened by bands of Indians, he does not anticipate trouble to any extent that the local authorities will not be able to overcome.

THE LIRA'S FATE.

Account of the Loss of the Arctic Exploring Steamer Eira and Rescue of the Crew.

[illegible] August [illegible] On the [illegible] June 1881 the Eira [illegible] Franz Josef land [illegible] was [illegible] On Aug [illegible] the Eira left Bell Island and being unable to pass to the eastward [illegible] was made [illegible] Cape Flora. The next few days were spent in collecting plants and fossils [illegible] The Eira was firmly nipped at about 10 A. M. a leak was discovered [illegible] all hands were sent to the pumps [illegible] was soon disconnected from the pumps and by the means of the steam which six casks of flour and about 800 pounds of bread were saved from the main hold. By this time the leak had gained to such an extent that nothing more could be saved from the lower deck. The engines were again started to pump but were soon drowned out. All hands were then engaged in saving the stores in the after cabin, which consisted chiefly of vegetables. Several hours elapsed from the time the leak was discovered till the time when the vessel had to be abandoned. The boats were saved and most of the men saved [illegible] and bedding.

Hardly had the last man left the ship when the vessel [illegible] and the Eira rapidly sank. Nothing [illegible] except a few spars and a young polar bear in a cask. Some of the sails were cut away and with these and some oars a tent was erected on the ice [illegible] which with bread and a pudding that had been made for the day's dinner [illegible] men who had been working nearly the whole day without any food. [illegible] The next morning everything was taken to the land a tent was put up at Cape Flora and the crew went to bed with light hearts.

It was soon evident that the winter would have to be spent at Cape Flora, so a house was built of stones and turf and covered with sails. For sixteen days all the crew lived in the tent [illegible] most of the night in endeavoring to keep up the house during a heavy gale. Before the wind set in sixteen walrus were shot and several bears. [illegible] principal food consisted of walrus and bear meat, which [illegible] with vegetables, was served out three times a day to twenty-five plates made out of old provision tins. [illegible] The fire was mostly made by means of blubber and [illegible] as very little coal and wood had been saved from the ship. Many times everybody was compelled to rush out of the house to avoid being suffocated by the smoke which the fire emitted [illegible] Frequent visits from bears were the hours of excitement during the long dark days. They often prowled around the tent and many a man got scared on rushing out in the dark. The only safe plan was to send a dog in front of anybody going out, as it always gave good warning when a bear was near.

One day about the end of October two men were walking on the ice in front of the hut when a dog rushed home wagging his tail and barking furiously until some of them followed him. To their delight some walrus were seen lying on the ice. The two men returned to the house and every rifle was prepared to give the walrus a heavy volley. Several were shot but nearly all fell into the water. A boat was launched and after an hour's exciting hunt five were killed. [illegible] and found some walrus on the ice. Three very large animals were killed and although there was 70 degrees of frost at the time everybody worked with a will till the meat and blubber were safely stowed [illegible] This good fortune [illegible] [illegible] so disastrous to [illegible]

It was at first thought that it would be easy to [illegible] of March there was scarcely [illegible] Every bear that was [illegible] was eagerly watched [illegible] Before the end of March eight bears had been killed and in April the birds [illegible] [illegible] so no walrus could be killed and bears were very scarce, but in June a strong gale cleared the ice away for 24 hours and the walrus were swimming in the water by hundreds. Five were killed in one day and for some days nothing was done but cooking large coppers full of meat [illegible] for the boat journey and on June 21 1882 four boats were started from Cape Flora with 25 men and provisions for two months. Eighty miles of water were crossed before we encountered ice and then our troubles began. Sometimes for days the boats were hauled up [illegible] [illegible]

DICTATOR DORSEY.

The Star Route Swindler Presumes to Dictate Cabinet Appointments.

[illegible] Washington [illegible] [illegible] a postmaster general [illegible] from a letter dated [illegible] 1881:

My dear [illegible]: [illegible] General Arthur came [illegible] last [illegible] Blaine [illegible] [illegible] He further says that Blaine [illegible] [illegible] Folger [illegible] his friends and is an evident [illegible] the treasury department. If Blaine had not cared to [illegible] satisfied [illegible] the appointment of Folger. I warn you [illegible] I write [illegible] what I have said to you more than once. Neither Blaine nor any other ambitious man should have control of the great places of your cabinet. If Blaine is to be made secretary of state and a protege of his secretary of the treasury and another secretary of the interior, I have great fear that the administration would greatly suffer with an even chance that disaster would fall upon the near future. I do not wish to say an unkind thing of Blaine although he is charged with responsibility for several of the most untruthful and malignant things said of me within a week, and the most untruthful and malignant ever uttered by man. If what General Arthur has heard is true it is clear as daylight to my mind that he expects to have one of his friends in the treasury department and another friend either in the postoffice or interior, and that through them and by them he intends to do one of two things, either to make your administration a camping ground for his own aspiration, or he has some other object no less dangerous to the party. I cannot bring myself to believe that Blaine is in the state of mind he is reported to be, and I sincerely trust General Arthur has been misinformed. I say to you that for your administration and the republican party and for the country that the appointment of Judge Folger to the treasury department is the most important one you have to deal with. Your failure to appoint him it seems to me would be the monumental mistake of your administration. I believe the republican party of the country think well of Blaine, and think his selection as the head of your cabinet is a wise one, but Blaine is not in a position to be chief of the cabinet and then dictate other important places in it, and what is of more importance you are not in a position to allow him to do it.

Revolutionary Proceedings.

The Star special advices from Guaymas, Sonora, of the 19th says the Mexican transportation steamer Mexico is expected daily at Guaymas with Gen Carbo and Ex-Governor Torres, with an escort of 500 federal troops. The general rumor throughout the state is that they come for the purpose of overthrowing the present government of which Gov. Carlos Ortiz is at the head. It is well known that the governor has of late been organizing companies in all the towns of the state, and at Alamos he has 900 national guards with two gatling guns. He has 4000 stands of Remington guns with large quantities of ammunition. Gen Carbo and Gen Urtier have for a long time been abusing each other through the press of Mexico and there is a terrible feeling existing which will ultimately end in a duel or a general revolution in Sonora.

Death of a Pioneer.

New Tacoma, W. T., Aug 21.—Jacob Halstead, an old pioneer and proprietor of the Halstead house, died suddenly of heart disease this morning. He had been in failing health for months but his death was entirely unexpected. Three months before he expired he was a member of the common council, which held a special meeting this evening to arrange for the funeral to-morrow.

A BABY'S SHOE

Intimations of the Sad Fate of a Little Girl in Montana Woods.

Butte (Montana) Inter-Mountain, July [illegible]: A little over three years ago a little girl named Sarah [illegible] strayed away from the home of her parents, who resided at the time north of Walker[ville]. Search for the child was made by the relatives but without success. Work was [illegible] Walkerville and this city and 75 or 100 men engaged in the search for the little one, which proved fruitless. The country surrounding the home the child had left was thoroughly examined for miles, but not even a shred of the clothing worn by her could be found. A drizzling rain accompanied by a slight snowfall added to the general difficulty of the undertaking and all hope of finding her was abandoned. The general supposition was that she had strayed into the timber and been seized and borne off by some wild beast [illegible] prominent citizens of Butte, sympathizing with the parents, offered a reward for the delivery of the lost child to her parents, dead or alive, or for information that would lead to her recovery. For some time there was a number of persons who still sought the whereabouts of the child but they at last gave up the search and considered further effort in that direction hopeless.

A few days since the parents of the child received word that a little shoe had been found about a mile and a half from the place where the child strayed from [illegible] hunters [illegible] [illegible]

TUESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 22, 1882.

THE MATTER OF MILEAGE.

The senate has given the country an exhibition of selfishness which does not reflect creditably upon that honorable body. When the general deficiency bill came up from the house, the senate appropriations committee added to it the following amendment:

For the payment of the mileage of senators who attended the special session of the senate convening on the 10th day of October, 1881, by proclamation of the president the sum of $32,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary.

The house very properly refused to agree to this amendment. The senate persisted in it. Each time the votes of the house against concurring in the amendment increased. The senate was finally compelled to recede on the last day but one of the session, and the bill was passed without amendment by a vote of 47 to 11. The general deficiency bill contained appropriations for the pay of the census clerks and for that of the school teachers, male and female at Washington. Many other employes of the government depending upon monthly salaries for support were compelled to wait for the money they had earned till this bill should be passed. The persistence of the senate in its demand for mileage for the extra session kept these poor persons out of their pay, as Mr. Pendleton loosely expressed it, "for one month at least." There ought to have been a great principle at stake to justify the senators in pushing their own pecuniary interests at the expense of other servants of the government, not so well able as they to wait for their money. The aggregate loss to the salaried class, provided for in this bill, owing to the shaving of their claims, was more than the whole mileage contended for by the senate.

Examination of the amendment on its merits does not tend to increase respect for its authors. Owing to the death of President Garfield the senate was called together in extra session Oct. 10, 1881. It remained in session twenty days. Congress convened in regular session the first Monday in December. An interval of a month only occurred between the adjournment of the special session and the beginning of the regular session. Senators who lived at a distance did not, as a matter of fact, go home. Washington is a delightful place in November and it was no hardship for any senator to pass a month in the city.

Each senator and representative is paid a mileage of 20 cents for each regular session, going and returning. This is about four times the actual cost of the journey, on the extreme supposition that senators and representatives pay for railroad transportation. But nine-tenths of them travel on free passes. An Oregon senator who pays no railroad fare can pocket $3000 for his expenses to and from Washington. The average mileage of the senators, as shown by the proposed appropriation, is $430. This sum would be sufficient to cover the necessary expenses of four journeys to and from the capital by each senator every year. Yet the senate insisted on doubling it on account of the extra session, and kept the clerks and school teachers out of their pay for months rather than relinquish the claim.

From any point of view the senate amendment was a petty piece of business. It was vociferously pressed by the democratic senators from Oregon and Missouri, and Senator Bayard of Delaware. Mileage of 20 cents is a grab of itself. It is astounding that anybody should attempt to double it on so slight a pretext as that afforded by the extra session. It will be a boon to the country if one session of congress shall pass without an attempt on the part of the senate of the United States to increase [illegible] perquisites or privileges.

IRREGULAR LEGISLATION.

The constitution of the state provides, Sec. 4, Art. 9, that "no money shall be drawn from the treasury except in pursuance of appropriations made by law;" and in Sec. 1, Art. 4, that "no law shall be enacted except by bill;" and in Sec. 19, Art. 4, that "every bill shall be read by sections on three several days in each house," etc., etc.; and shall be signed by the presiding officer of both houses and by the governor. The rule is direct and plain and cannot be misunderstood, and yet it is habitually violated. It has come to be a common practice for the legislature to appropriate money and pay it out of the treasury by means of joint resolutions, which are not laws and can in no way have the authority of laws, or any other authority except as they relate to the government of the two houses which pass them. The records of the sessions of 1878 and 1880 show direct appropriation by joint resolution, of money in half a dozen instances. Senate joint resolution No. 3, session of 1878, directs the purchase of two hundred and fifty copies of Oregon supreme court reports at $5 per copy, and house joint resolution No. 3, session of 1880, legalizes the payment of a warrant by the state treasurer, before funds for its payment had been appropriated. It is not necessary to cite numerous other instances which the records show. In the cases above mentioned, appropriation of considerable sums are made clearly in violation of plain provisions of the constitution. This loose way of doing business is wrong and liable to lead to serious abuses. The delay of three readings on separate days, not required in case of joint resolutions, was designed to afford time for examination of the merits of the law under consideration, and is a proper check upon carelessness and jobbery. And the right of governor's veto is another check which cannot by any trick of legislation be avoided.

As samples of many of the items in the river and harbor appropriation bill just passed by congress the following for the pretended improvement of pretended navigable rivers in the state of Mississippi are cited:

Big Sunflower	$5,000	Noxumbee	$10,000
Pascagoula	8,000	Pearl	17,500
Tallahatchie	3,000	Pohula lake	2,500
Tombigee	1,000	Yallobusha	3,500
Yazoo	8,000	Old Town creek	3,000

But it is not only the southern states which plunder the national treasury under the pretense of improving the navigation of mill-ponds and creeks, by falsely calling them navigable streams. Here are a few samples from the New Jersey items of the river and harbor bill:

Maurice river	$ 3,000
Woodbury creek	5,000
Cheesequake creek	15,000
Elizabeth river	5,000
Mottawan creek	7,000
Manasquan river	50,000
Passaic river	30,000
Shrewsbury river	3,000
Mantua creek	3,000
Raccoon river	7,000
Rahway river	8,000
Woodbridge creek	10,000
Rancocas river	25,000
Raritan river	5,000
Cohansey creek	1,500
Salem river	10,000
South river

The closest student of his country's geography would have a hard job to locate all these pretended navigable streams. A search warrant couldn't find many of them.

People who are alarmed or affect to be alarmed at the supposed increase in the number of the Irish population of this country should study statistics and take fresh courage. The fact is that in recent years there has been a decrease in the arrivals from Ireland to this country, both absolutely and as compared with the immigration from other foreign countries. In 1851 the Irish immigration reached its highest point, 221,253 persons. Thirty years later, in 1881, when the greatest number of immigrants that ever came to this country in a single year arrived, the number from Ireland was only 70,909, a decrease of two-thirds, and in 1877, an ordinary year, the number was only 13,791. During the same thirty years immigration from England has steadily increased until now it is 5000 larger than the Irish, whereas in 1851 the latter was 250 times as great as the former. Thirty years ago Irish immigration surpassed that from all countries combined; last year it was less than one-tenth of the whole, being smaller even than that from Norway and Sweden.

John Baird & Son, of Philadelphia, are protectionists of the same variety as the Kentucky miller who wanted no tariff on the machinery he had to buy, but wanted 50 per cent. of it on the goods he made and sold. This Philadelphia firm want the discrimination between statuary made by American artists abroad and that made by foreigners abolished. Statuary when made by American artists is admitted duty free; but the work of foreign artists is taxed 10 per cent. This is a discrimination in favor of the American artist which Philadelphians ought not to object to. Statuary being a luxury, bought only by the rich, it is taxed by our admirable tariff either very little or not at all; but woolen blankets, being necessities and being bought largely by poor people, the tariff loads them down with about 85 per cent. of tax. There is no reason apparent why the principle of protection should not be applied for the benefit of American artists. It is quite as proper to protect American artists abroad as to protect foreigners in this country. But the Philadelphia firm want the American artists deprived of the slight discriminating duty in their favor; it is safe to assume that they are dealing in the work of foreign artists, and some other firm escapes the duty by dealing in the work of Americans.

Dr. A. E. McDonald, medical superintendent of the Ward Island insane asylum, New York, promulgates the theory that insanity is the disease of civilization. In Europe insanity is more common than in this country, and more prevalent in our east than in our west. The ratio of insane to sane is increasing. See England, for instance: In 1860 the ratio was 19.10 to every 1000 of population; in 1870 it was 24.56, and in 1880, 27.94. One might almost be tempted to think in the light of these facts that a return to barbarism would be desirable, but the fact is also pointed out that while civilization increases insanity it gives us a better show for curing it. So we are relatively better off after all. Dr. McDonald says that if cases are taken in hand within three months three out of five get well and only one of the three is liable to a recurrence of the malady. When treatment is delayed six months one-half of the cases will recover.

Although the Northern Pacific road east from Ainsworth has been in operation and has carried the mails for more than a year, the postal department has not provided messenger service for that line. Messengers on the Portland-Walla Walla route by a vast deal of extra work arrange matter for the larger stations in pouches which go through direct, but between the various points on the road there is no mail service save through the general office at Ainsworth. The officials here have repeatedly asked the department to provide a service but no response has been made to their appeals. A great section with a population of many thousands is neglected, while thousands of dollars are paid for service on comparatively insignificant local routes throughout the country.

Ex-Governor Morgan's income is estimated at $500,000 a year; Russell Sage's is rated at $1,000,000 to $1,500,000, while Jay Gould's income cannot be less than $6,000,000. To come down to smaller men, R. L. Stuart has nearly $1,000,000 a year, while Robert and Ogden Goelet are each rated at $250,000. Bennett is reckoned at $600,000, D. O. Mills figures at $250,000, and the young Vanderbilts (Wm. K. and Cornelius) are not much below him. The estate of A. T. Stewart & Co. has an income of $1,000,000, which renders Cornelia Stewart the richest widow in America. The Astors (John Jacob and William) are estimated each at $1,500,000, while Wm. H. Vanderbilt probably has five times that sum.

Several congressional committees will sit during the recess. The ways and means committee will be ready by the second Tuesday of November to receive reports from the tariff commission; the joint committee on printing will endeavor to make some suggestions for the reduction of the mass of documents published by authority of congress; the house select committee on the improvement of the Mississippi will examine on the spot the character of work now in progress and decide on the merits of work projected, and the joint select committee of the house and senate will inquire into the condition and wants of the American merchant marine.

England has violated the neutrality of the Suez canal and unless there is some bargain of which the dispatches give no hint, will offend the powers of Europe. The step is a bold one.

There will be a fierce contest for nominations in the California republican convention, which meets at Sacramento next week.

The promised big fight across the water turned out to be only a "fake."

WOLFE'S

Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps.

As a general beverage, necessary corrective of water rendered impure by vegetable decomposition or other causes, as limestone, sulphate of copper, etc., the AROMATIC SCHNAPPS is superior to every other alcoholic preparation. A public trial of over thirty years' duration, in every section of our country, of UDOLPHO WOLFE'S SCHNAPPS, its unsolicited indorsement by the medical faculty, and a sale unequaled by any other alcoholic distillation, have insured for it the reputation for salubrity claimed for it. For sale by all druggists and grocers.

CITY.

DASTARDLY ATTACK.—Theodore Rolf, the mail carrier at Rooster Rock, was attacked in his house Sunday night by two men and seriously stabbed in and about the groin. The men attacked him in the hope of obtaining a large sum of money which the latter was known to possess. In this, however they were foiled, as they succeeded in obtaining only a small sum which Rolff carried about his person, the rest having been put in a place of security. Incensed by this failure one of the men drew a knife and, while the other held Mr. Rolff, inflicted the injuries spoken of above. Yesterday morning Mr. Rolff gave a description of his two assailants to a neighbor, Mr. Nelson E. Ross, who found two such men preparing to go to Portland. He at once followed them on board the steamer Gazelle and came to this city last night. The two men landed in East Portland, while Mr. Ross came to this side and made a complaint to the police. It being out of their jurisdiction, Policeman Barry accompanied him to Justice Bushwiler's court where a warrant was issued. Constable Stephenson and Policeman Barry, accompanied by Mr. Ross, then went over to East Portland and found the baggage of the two men, who had in the meantime gone to this side. The ferries were watched, and shortly afterward Mr. Ross pointed out the two men whom he had shadowed all day just as they landed on the East Portland side. They were arrested and gave their names as J. E. Miles and Richard Doubleday, both Englishmen. Mr. Ross kept in the background during the arrest, and both men averred their innocence of the charge, but said they knew of the crime and believed that one of the men concerned came down on the same boat with them. When asked to describe this man they gave an exact description of Mr. Ross. They were then taken before Justice Bushwiler, where in default of bail they were committed to the county jail to await examination to-day.

MORE ABOUT THE RICCO MURDER.—Sheriff White left yesterday morning for the Upper Cascades in charge of the prisoner Giardini. The latter objected strongly to be handcuffed, but the trip is too long and too open to be undertaken without this precaution. A telegram received at the police station from the coroner of Skamania county says that the most diligent search has failed to find the body of the murdered man. Candiani, the partner of the murdered man, whom the latter charges with the crime, disappeared from the factory, thus giving more color to the prisoner's last story, or at least furnishes a strong suspicion that he was an accomplice in the murder. Candiani is known as "The Count," and is said to have borne that title in his native country. He was the founder of the Italian colony started in Yamhill county some years ago. A warrant has been issued for his arrest and officers have already started on the search. Sheriff White will set out immediately upon his return. An interpreter was telegraphed for and will go up on the boat this morning, and upon his arrival Giardini's examination will be held.

THE MULTNOMAH RAILWAY COMPANY.—Last night the Multnomah railway company, recently organized with Robert Bell, J. B. Wheat and G. B. Bel[illegible] as incorporators, asked the East Portland board of trustees for a franchise upon certain streets. In conversation with an OREGONIAN man, a gentleman prominently connected with the enterprise said the company intended to construct a line from the Stark street ferry landing out L street to [illegible], thence to the base line road, thence to Lone Fir cemetery, thence to the Columbia river opposite Vancouver; also a branch to Mount Tabor. It is proposed to run dummy engines over those portions of the lines outside the city limits. If the company can secure the franchise recently abandoned by the Willamette street railway and for which they have already petitioned the city council, they will carry out the plans proposed by the disbanded company. The new enterprise is backed by ample capital, and among the promoters is a man of long experience in street railways in eastern cities.

A BAD COMPANY.—Harry Prebles, a young man of [illegible] connections, went out to the White House last Sunday night, and while there met two fascinating [illegible] in the persons of Flora Franks and Minnie [illegible], actresses at the Elite theater. He accompanied them back to the city in a hack, and went to a private room in Vogt's restaurant with them to take supper. While there he claims he was [illegible] and robbed of $70. He made a complaint in the evening before Justice Greene, and [illegible] Grant arrested both girls, taking $20 for their appearance yesterday. The case was [illegible] by Justice Greene until to-day, and Prebles, upon sober second thought, appearing rather [illegible] to prosecute, was required to deposit $50 for his appearance. The item yesterday concerning [illegible] was incorrect, THE OREGONIAN'S informant having given her name in place of Flora [illegible].

QUICK TRIP.—From Pendleton to Portland in thirty hours will appear to those who have made the trip by boats, portages and stage to be rather fast, but the trip was made in that time Sunday, and no extraordinary running either. Assistant chief engineer H. B. Thielsen left Pendleton, or more correctly a point one mile this side of Pendleton, by special engine at 5 A. M., the engine running backwards, and reached Umatilla, 44 miles, at 11 A. M. The Dalles, [illegible] miles, was made shortly before four o'clock. After three-quarters of an hour wait, the run from the Dalles to Bonneville, 46 miles, was made in one hour and thirty-five minutes, a trifle over thirty miles per hour. From Bonneville a [illegible] ride was taken to Table-Rock, whence an [illegible] boat [illegible] into East Portland, reaching there at [illegible] P. M.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS.—At the regular meeting of Bethel Home lodge No. 1, I. O. G. T., of the [illegible] held in Bethel hall, corner of Third and D [illegible], last evening, the following officers for the ensuing quarter were duly installed by the general deputy, Rev. R. B. Sutton: Mrs. H. L. Evans, W. C. T.; Mr. [illegible], W. V. T.; Miss Bessie Stubbs, [illegible]; Mr. M. Steele, W. A. S.; Mrs. M. E. Stubbs, [illegible]; Mr. J. A. Bennett, W. M.; Mr. A. Olsen, W. [illegible]; Mr. W. Kirkpatrick, W. C.; Mr. E. J. Nunn, W. [illegible]; Mr. J. McMillan, W. Sentinel; Mr. W. H. [illegible], P. W. C. T. Chaplain Stubbs recently arrived from Victoria and Esquimalt, where he installed the new officers of "Hope of the Navy" and the "Young Seamen's Royal Naval" lodge.

OCEAN SURVIVORS HEARD FROM.—It will be remembered that the British bark Bulwark was wrecked in January last on our northern coast, and a portion of her crew, five in number, reached [illegible] in one of the ship's boats. [illegible] it was supposed that the remainder had perished with the vessel. The British ship [illegible], which recently arrived at Melbourne, reports on March 8th picked up two of the crew of the Bulwark, about 300 miles from the [illegible]. They had traveled, when picked up, [illegible] from the place where the vessel was [illegible], and were much exhausted from want of food. Their account of the disaster agrees with that of the men who reached Coos Bay.

TO THE PENITENTIARY.—Yesterday John C. Pow[illegible] was taken to the penitentiary by Sheriff Sears. When he was about to take his departure from the county jail in which he has been confined for nearly a year, he wished to tell the prisoners good-bye, but broke down completely after he had shaken hands with two or three. He was not hand-cuffed, and on the trip conversed for an hour or more with Governor Thayer. His hair and beard were cut short, and upon arriving at the state prison, he was [illegible] shaved. Since the bullet was extracted from his face his health has been very much better, and [illegible] new lease of life, his spirits have risen.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM WRECKING.—The little [illegible] was beached Saturday, in order to have a new propeller put on. A few days ago, while making her last trip from Portland to Tillamook, [illegible] lost her propeller as she was crossing out, it [illegible] and dropping off. Fortunately for the safety of the vessel there was a good breeze from the northwest, and by quick work the captain got out sails and swung around, just missing the wreck of the Edith Lorne, upon which he would otherwise have gone.—Astorian.

ACCIDENTS TO CHILDREN.—A six-year-old daughter of P. Ruland, who resides in King's addition, was playing with a number of children of her own age a few days ago near her father's residence. While climbing a fence the child fell to the ground, and her leg was broken below the knee. Dr. C. C. Strong reduced the fracture. A five-year-old daughter of J. M. Hudson turned over a pot in which some meat was cooking and the hot liquid went over her, badly scalding her shoulder and portions of her body.

NEW PRECEPTRESS.—Miss Triggs, A. B., who arrived on the steamer from San Francisco yesterday, has been elected preceptress of the women's college of the Willamette University, and will enter upon her duties in connection with that institution Sept. 4th. Miss Triggs is a graduate of Pittsburg Female College, Penn., and comes well recommended. This department of the university promises to be a great success the coming year.

FORMAL PROCEEDINGS.—The notice of filing supplemental articles of incorporation by the O. R. & N. Co., published in another column, is merely a formal proceeding to enable the company to carry out their ultimate object; viz: to ramify with railroads the entire grain producing region of eastern Oregon and Washington. It is likely that work on some of the branches enumerated will begin next year.

FAVORABLY IMPRESSED.—Mr. R. M. Wells, of Toronto, Canada, a member of the dominion parliament, has for several weeks been traveling in Oregon and Washington Territory, and returned by the last steamer. Mr. Wells is a man of great means and an eminent lawyer. He was very favorably impressed with the northwest.

BACK IN JAIL.—Charles Dixon, barkeeper, arrested for robbing Peter Smith on the night of the 10th inst., in the Belvidere saloon, on First street, and who gave bonds in the person of a certain James York, was returned to the county jail yesterday, the latter having surrendered him.

VALLEY WHEAT.—Shipments of wheat from the harvest fields in the Willamette valley will begin in earnest this week. Yesterday the O. & C. railroad received orders for fifty cars at different stations on the line, and they will go out this morning.

TEACHERS' EXAMINATION.—Mr. O. F. Paxton, county school superintendent, will hold a public examination of teachers at the Park school building in this city next Friday, the 25th inst., commencing at 9 A. M.

THE STEAMERS.—The State arrived in at 7:45 yesterday morning, left for Portland at 9:30 and arrived there at 5:30 P. M. The Oregon arrived down at 12:30 and went to sea at 4 P. M.

THE TRAVELLER.—This steamer which plies between Portland and the Cascades is now owned by Messrs. L. D. Brown, Buchanan and R. S. Oakley.

Mrs. A. M. Elkins has sold her interest in the lodging house corner Oak and Second street to W. P. Shields, and leaves Wednesday, accompanied by her daughter, for a pleasure trip on the sound.

WILLAMETTE WAVELETS.

[illegible]

Driving over the Third street bridge with teams at a rate faster than a walk has become quite frequent of late, especially among young sports and hyphens, and several of these classes have paid fines in the police court. This matter was the topic yesterday and it was in a conversation about these that an important fact in regard to the law of mechanics was elicited.

"This thing must be stopped," remarked the court. "It requires a bridge more to drive over it at a trot than it does to walk a team over it fifty times. Even a man trotting over a bridge will rock it more than a team passing over it. It's the [illegible] of vibration."

"Yes, I suppose that's so," said the city attorney. "I remember a case, when I was a boy, of a big suspension bridge being built near where I lived, and everybody bragged about its strength and security. An old music teacher, who was known around the country as a very eccentric individual, laughed at the builders and declared that with all its vaunted security he could shake every strand of the cables and every stone of the foundation with nothing but his old fiddle. Of course no one believed him and they bothered him so much that at last he said he would prove to them that what he had said was true.

"He brought out his old fiddle and a bow, whose hairs were few from long use, and went down to the bridge. The whole town turned out to see the show. The old man went out and took a station on the bridge. He lifted the fiddle and drew the bow so softly across the strings that the sound was imperceptible to the throng below. Low, sweet strains first floated upon the air, gradually swelling in force and increasing in time until the whole bridge vibrated in reality to the flood of melody. The cries and jeers of the crowd were now changed to shouts of fear as the vast structure swayed more and more until the foundations did actually tremble, and still the old music teacher played on. At last when the towers seemed almost touching as they waved through the air, he stopped. As he walked away from the spot, the people looked upon him as a demigod. But the bridge was never safe after that."

"Yes, I can believe that," said the court. "But I know of a case of greater and more rapid vibration than that. Charley Fairfax vibrates between a saloon way down on First street and the city jail every time I let him out."

And then the court lit a cigar and lay down to sleep and smoke.

Just an even score filled the prisoner's bench in the police court yesterday. Eight too many for a full jury, though otherwise their appearance was eminently calculated to mislead a stranger.

"First class in moral science stand up!" remarked the chronic Ramrod O'Kelley, who occupied as usual on Monday, a prominent place on the bench.

"Looken hiere dlemdelatic convientiony," said a John way down at the foot.

The court rapped for silence and the docket was opened.

"R. Thompson, drunk and disorderly. What do you plead? Speak out, we can't afford front seats to all to-day."

"Guilty."

"Ten dollars."

"J. N. O'Kelly, same charge."

"Guilty."

"Same fine."

And so on clear through the docket, which was disposed of in an astonishingly short space of time. Then came Ah Tung, chicken thief, who was examined through an interpreter.

"Ask him what he was doing with three chickens under his arm," said the prosecutor.

"He say he pick 'em up on street."

"Ask him whose they were."

"He dunno."

"Ask him if they were his."

"He say no."

"Fifteen days," said the court; and John stepped down to his dungeon cell.

Prof. J. C. Campbell, of Junction City, is in the city visiting his son, J. A. Campbell, of the firm of Campbell & Hewitt.

Mr. Chas. Burrows and family, late of Yreka, Cal., arrived Saturday from that place. They will reside here permanently. Mr. Burrows, some six years ago, was manager of the gas company at Salem.

Mr. J. H. Thatcher, late manager of the Western Union in this city, is now connected with the auditor's office of the N. P. R. R. Mr. J. W. Hays, late of San Francisco, is now manager of the company here.

William Butler, arrested for indecent exposure, deposited $25 as security for his appearance.

James Franklin and William Gill will be tried to-day for the assault committed on Jim Sullivan with a stone.

James Kelly, arrested for kicking Thomas Brown, paid a fine of $10 and costs. Brown, who left the city one day last week and was brought back by an order of the court, was fined $5 for contempt.

OPERA COMIQUE—"OLIVETTE."

The Hattie Moore-Gates troupe opened in the New Market theater last night to a large house, notwithstanding the excessive heat that prevailed during the evening. The orchestra was very inferior and the chorus somewhat deficient in strength. The piece had no end of fun, especially in the "comedy of errors" between the two Captain Merrimacs, and everybody seemed in a good humor over it. The songs of "Bob up Serenely," and Hattie Moore's song, "Oh, my Father," in the second act, were both loudly encored. The opera will be repeated to-night, and the popular opera of "Mascotte" will be given to-morrow night.

MURDERED BODY FOUND.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

SENESS CREEK, M. T., Aug. 17.—On the 10th instant some of Small & Ellis' men found a body floating in Lake Pend d'Oreille, opposite Ellisport. The face was completely mashed in, and appeared to have received one or more blows across the face and side of the head, breaking the bridge of the nose and left jaw. The jaw bone was broken in many places. There was also bruises on the back of the head, evidently done with some blunt instrument. Undoubtedly it is a case of cold blooded murder. The following is a careful description, and may perhaps lead to the identity of the murdered man: Age about forty years, height 5 feet 9 inches; weight about 150 pounds; hair dark, almost black, growing thin; bald on crown of head; beard dark but very thin growth; the head rested on a thick neck, the face was full and of a German cast; the body had on a pair of Dom Pedro laced shoes which had been repaired at the soles, cotton socks. Fastened to one ankle was a pair of cotton drawers and a pair of check tweed pantaloons of a dark greyish color, neither coat, vest or shirt. There were no papers or valuables of any description found on the body, nor was there any marks. It had evidently been in the water about two weeks.

There being no coroner, nor any proper officer within reasonable distance, no inquest was held, and the body of the unfortunate man was taken charge of by some charitably inclined men in the employ of Messrs. Small & Ellis, and decently interred the following day. It now rests under the shades of two willow trees on a point opposite Ellisport, known as Hoaglin's point. Any one interested can obtain the pantaloons found with the body by dropping a line or going in person to Ellisport.

It strikes me that something more than simple items for newspapers should be made of these matters. Only ten days ago a body was seen floating by here, but could not be taken to the shore owing to the swift current, and it is no doubt now floating somewhere about Lake Pend d'Oreille. A fortnight has passed over our heads since the body of poor Fitzgerald was found in the lake with a deep gash on his head. Authorities should have proper officers here, at least some one qualified to hold an inquest, as there are able and intelligent men here who could act as jurymen. It is to be hoped that some steps will be taken. If proper officers were here to investigate, it might have a tendency to prevent this wholesale butchery. It certainly does not speak well for a state or territory to permit its subjects to be waylaid and killed like beasts without making an attempt to ferret out the perpetrators and bring them to justice.

TWENTY-SEVEN TO NINE.

The Stars Pile up the Runs in the Second Game at Walla Walla.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

WALLA WALLA, Aug. 21.—The evident superiority of the Stars over the home club was more than ever shown in the return match played here to-day. A great amount of loose playing was indulged in on both sides, the Stars because of their strength, the Walla Wallas because of their weakness. Five innings constituted the game, which resulted in a score of 27 to 9 in favor of the Stars. Frank Coulter pitched for the Stars in the first inning and was heavily batted by the Walla Wallas. Duniway pitched the remainder of the game, and his delivery proved as puzzling as it was yesterday. Following is the score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5
Stars	7	6	8	3	3	—27
Walla Wallas	6	1	2	0	0	—9

PROBABLY FATAL ACCIDENT.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DAYTON, W. T., Aug. 21.

John Crawford, 24 years old, went into John Goodwin's field Saturday evening to look for horses. Not returning at dark search was made and he was found at midnight unconscious, with the top of his forehead mashed in—compound comminuted fracture. Doctor Pietrzyki arrived next morning and took out 14 pieces of the skull by the trepanning process. He may recover. He was probably thrown and kicked by the horse he was riding.

SATCHEL ROBBED OF MONEY.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

ROSEBURG, Aug. 18.

Last Tuesday night Ham Young, bookkeeper for On Wau, Chinese contractor for supplying section men for the O. & C. R. R. Co., arrived from Portland and put up at the Metropolitan hotel. He had a small satchel with him which contained $169. This he afterwards handed over to the proprietor without stating what it contained. In the morning he secured his valise and started for the depot intending to return on the 5 A. M. train to Portland. When he opened his valise at the ticket office he found that a slit had been cut in the bottom of his satchel and his money abstracted.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST.

Eastern Oregon.

Joseph White, of Bake Oven, Wasco county, began as a sheep herder in that region with at [illegible] five years ago. He recently sold out his band of sheep for $[illegible]. From his last year's shearing ... sold from his ewes $[illegible] worth of wool and [illegible] lambs.

Two bands of sheep, numbering in all 22[illegible] head, kept on a Bay creek ranch, sheared this year 20,[illegible] pounds of wool, or 9 pounds 5 oz. per sheep. These sheep were of common blood until since 1875, when the owners put several full blooded merino bucks into the flock. The improvement both in quantity and quality of wool has been steady since that date. Some of the yearlings this year sheared 20 pounds of wool each, and many sheared 15 to 16 pounds.

The jail department of the Wasco county court house is nearly finished. There are three single iron cells 6x9 by 9 feet high and two double cells 9 feet square, all made of ¾ inch boiler iron. Each cell has a grated iron door with a small grated trap door for communication with prisoners, and all are constructed in the latest approved manner. The grated doors open into a corridor which through a grated door opens into the corridor of the main building. At the side of this door is the door into the jailer's room, which is also grated, and has grated windows.

There will be no fair held in Linn county this fall.

A farm containing 150 acres on the Little Luckiamute was sold last week for $2600.

Wheat is coming into Albany at the rate of 5000 bushels daily. The price offered is 80 cents.

A campmeeting will be held at Roberts' bridge, Linn county, beginning Aug. 31st and continuing two weeks.

The school for deaf mutes at Salem will be reopened on the 6th of September. Rev. P. S. Knight will be in charge.

Mrs. Charlotte Benton died at the home of her brother, George Patterson, in Albany, on the 12th inst., of heart disease. She had arisen and dressed herself, preparatory to getting breakfast, and died without a moment's warning.

A young lady in Lost valley, Lane county, borrowed a threshing machine of Jos. Parker and in one half day threshed out 231 bushels of oats. She bucked her own straw, held the sacks, tended the riddles and oiled the seperator.

Last week W. C. Moyan, being near Albany, lost a horse, the fifth since Christmas. Desiring to know what ailed the horse, he, assisted by others, made a post-mortem examination. They were somewhat surprised to find in the stomach enough binder-wire to fill one of the hands. They were the small pieces twisted together and clipped off on threshing, and rolled together had worked themselves through the mucous membrane of the stomach in several places, of course causing death.

Several months ago, A. S. Patterson, postmaster of Eugene City, was accidentally struck on the left arm by a stick of wood which was carelessly thrown by a person engaged in splitting fire wood at his residence. He did not feel the effects of it much for several weeks, but during the last two or three months has not been able to use the arm. It was finally deemed necessary to perform a surgical operation for its relief. This was done last Wednesday, and several pieces of bruised flesh were removed.

Saturday afternoon the dead body of a man was found in the road about a mile east of Canby, in Clackamas county. Some children discovered it first and communicated the intelligence to a person who came into Oregon City and notified the coroner. The coroner held an inquest yesterday on the spot where the body was found. The features of the dead man were almost unrecognizable, the flesh having been eaten off the face and trunk by the hogs. The dead man is supposed to be William Reed who formerly owned a small chicken ranch near Aurora. It is said that he had been drinking heavily for about 10 or 12 days past, and it is thought that becoming overpowered with drink he had fallen by the wayside in a fit of delirium tremens and died. The jury rendered a verdict in accordance with the above facts. The remains of the unfortunate man were buried near the place where the body was found.

Boise Statesman: About two weeks ago W. P. Hall, foreman for M. Ryan, arrived at the Snake river bridge at Blackfoot with 1800 head of cattle. The herd was very wild, as it had been made up of four different bands. An unsuccessful attempt was made to get the cattle across the bridge. Some of them had entered the river, and it was decided to swim the whole herd. Hall rode his horse out into the deep water above the bridge, but got into an eddy. He then called to J. C. Van Deventer to throw him a rope. Van Deventer responded, but the rope caught in his spur and he was pulled from his horse, and with the animal floundered about in fifteen feet of water. He managed to remount the horse, which struck out immediately for the cattle in the middle of the river. After a hard struggle and several narrow escapes similar to the one described, he reached the shore a mile below the bridge. Some of the cattle were carried two miles down the stream, but only eleven head of worn-out and lame animals were lost. Van Deventer could not swim, and his escape from drowning seems wonderful. It is said to be the first time a mounted horse ever swam Snake river.

MINING NEWS.

Jacksonville Times.

Some of the miners are getting ready for winter.

Jack Layton, of Applegate, is still cleaning up considerable of the glittering ore.

Quartz interests are looking up and considerable prospecting for ledges is being done.

A. W. Sturgis is still at work on his drifting claim on Jackass creek, with fair success.

The sale of the Josephine mine has been postponed until Monday, September 25th.

With very few exceptions, all the miners of Foots creek have suspended work for the season. Goldsworthy & Justus are still at work, however, and are doing well.

From J. M. Smith, of Wilderville, who was in Jacksonville during the week, we learned that Geo. Taylor, M. Baughman and S. W. Forbes are prospecting for quartz in that section.

N. O. Mitchell and Geo. Ross are taking up a large number of quartz ledges in different portions of the county. We learn that they have a mill at Roseburg, which will soon be shipped to this section.

Parties from San Francisco have been and some are still in Josephine county looking at the mines, with the intention of purchasing. Bybee & Skeeters were offered six thousand dollars for their claim.

John Bolt of Applegate was in town Saturday and informed us that Derrickson & Co. have struck a ledge at Horsehead, in Josephine county. Their mill has already arrived and is being put in position.

D. Slagle, who now resides near Waldo, Josephine county, informs us that Witner & Simmons will be engaged in cleaning up for several weeks to come. They will no doubt take out in the neighborhood of $20,000.

Rast & Criteser will work the Steam Beer mine in Leland precinct, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding, and have employed Ben Parker as superintendent. These mines are paying well and have already proven valuable property.

YAQUINA BAY NOTES.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEWPORT, Aug. 19.

The weather is the finest in the land.

The Benton met with an accident, breaking her pitman. The engineer, Mr. H. T. Ervin, has gone to Portland to have it repaired.

There is not a pound of flour to be had in Newport. All are anxiously awaiting the arrival of the Yaquina, which is expected the 21st inst.

There are several Portland people stopping at the Irvin House, among whom are: Mrs. E. Patterson and son, A. B. Cox and Jas. M. Wheeler.

A party of eighteen, including Cox and Wheeler of Portland, went to Seal Rock on a fishing expedition. They left the Irvin House this morning and were the jolliest set that ever crossed the bay.

Mr. Alexander Rixer's son, eight years old, has been missing since last Friday. The body was found in Alsea river yesterday and the supposition is that he fell out of a boat and was accidentally drowned.

THE TRYST.

White, weird, and ghostly crept the fog
Over river, and mead, and coast;
Each fast moored boat on the harbor all out,
Loomed like a threatening ghost.
The sea lay muttering sullenly,
Under the veiling mist,
And the buoy bell rang with its [illegible] funeral
When the tide on the lip of the [illegible] was dying,
And in gloom I kept our tryst.

For white holy grief and loving trust
With me kept watch together,
I reck not, [illegible] of sunny sky,
Our hearts hold tranquil weather.
So I know, in the royal right of Love

SENDING A TELEGRAM.

An Inexperienced Traveler's Laborious Efforts.

Burlington (Iowa) Hawkeye.

One man reached a long arm over the little crowd clustered at the operator's window and asked for a "blank telegraphic form," explaining that he "wished to send a telegraphic dispatch to his family." Now, when a man speaks of a "telegraphic dispatch," I always wake up and look at him, because the cumbersome title is all at utter variance with the spirit of the telegraph. It's too long. The use of it betrays the man who has little use for the telegraph. The more he uses the wire, the shorter his terms. The more nearly he can come to saying "msg," the more content he is. And he doesn't call it a "telegraphic form;" he asks for a "blank," black or red, as the case may be. And he never "telegraphs" anybody. He "wires" them. And he doesn't explain to the operator what he wants to do with the blank. Presumably he wants to write a message. And as for the matters referred to in that "msg" and the party for whom it is intended, the operator will know all that he wishes to know—and sometimes much more than you want him to know—soon enough.

So I watched this passenger write his "telegraphic dispatch." First he asked the operator: "What day of the month is this?" There was nothing unusual in that. All men ask that. It is the opening line in the regular formula of sending a "msg." You may know what date it is before entering the office, you may even have it impressed upon your mind by having a note fall due on that day, but the moment you poise your pencil over the blank, that date flies from your mind like the toothache from a dentist's stairway. So when the man asked; "What day of the month is this?" I was not surprised. I courteously answered him, as a cover to approaching his position, but he did not believe me. He repeated his question, and made the operator answer. Then I knew he was very new at it. He spoiled three blanks before he got a "telegraphical dispatch" written to suit him. But even that is not very uncommon. A man always uses stationery more extravagantly in another man's office than he does at home. Then he wrote every word in the body of the dispatch very carefully and distinctly, but scrambled hurriedly over the address as though everybody knew that as well as he did, and dashed off his own signature in a blind letter style, as though his name was as familiar to the operator as it was to his own family. But even this is not uncommon. A man will write "Cunningham" so that no expert under the skies will tell whether it was Covington or Carrington, or Cumagen, or Carrenton, and and when the operator points to it and asks: "What is this?" the writer will stare at him in blank amazement for a moment, and then answer: "Why, that's my name!" "Well, yes, I know that," the operator will say, "but what is your name?" Then the man will gasp for breath and catch hold of the desk to keep himself from falling, and finally shout out, "Why, Cunningham, of course!!" and look pityingly upon the operator, and then glance about the room with a pained, shocked expression, as one who should say, "you may not believe it, and I do not blame you, but heaven is my witness—here is a man who does not know that my name is Cunningham!" This is not unusual. Any operator will tell you that he has met Cunningham scores of times and has mortally offended him every time by asking his name.

Well, my tall man with the thin neck got along a little better than that when he handed the operator the following explicit message:

> Mrs. Sarah K. Follinsbee, Dallas Centre, Iowa:—My Dear Wife:—I left the city early this morning after eating breakfast with Prof. Morton, a live man in the temperance cause. I expected to eat dinner with you at home, but we were delayed by a terrible railroad accident, and I narrowly escaped being killed; one passenger was terribly mangled and has since died, but I am alive. The conductor says I cannot make connection so as to come to Dallas Centre this morning. But I can get there by 8 o'clock this evening. I hate to disappoint you, but cannot help it. With love to mother and the children, I am your loving husband
> ROGER K. FOLLINSBEE.

The operator read it, smiled and said: "You can save considerable expense and tell all that is really necessary, I presume, by shortening this message down to ten words. We have no wire directly into Dallas and will have to send the message part of the way over another line, which adds largely to the cost of transmission. Shall I shorten this for you?" "No, oh, no," the man with a shawl replied, "I'll fix it myself. Ten words, you say?" "Yes, sir." It was a stunner, for a fact, and the man heaved a despairing sigh as he prepared to boil his "letter" down to 10 words. He sighed again after reading it through once or twice, and then scratched out "Dallas Centre, Iowa," as though everybody knew where he lived. Then he erased "early" and drew his pen slowly through "breakfast with" and "in the temperance." Then he scratched over "dinner with" and went on to erase and "narrowly escaped." And so he went on through the dispatch. Occasionally he would hold it from him at arm's length after making an erasure, to get at the general effect. And at last after much scratching and erasing and with many sighs, he came to the window and said. "Here is this telegraphic dispatch to my wife. I have not been able to condense it into 10 words, and do not see how it can be done without garbling the sense of the dispatch, but if you can do it, you would oblige me greatly, as I do not wish to incur any really unnecessary expense. And with that he handed the operator the following expunged edition of his original message:

> Mrs. Sarah H. Follinsbee: My Dear Wife—I left the city—this morning after eating—Prof. Morton alive—cause I expected to eat—you at home. But we were delayed by a terrible railroad accident on the railroad. I—being killed—terribly mangled and since died; but I am—the conductor. I cannot come to Dallas Centre,—but I can—I hate—mother and children. Your loving husband,
>
> ROGER K. FOLLINSBEE.

The operator smiled once more, and in his his quick, nervous way that grows out of his familiar association with the lightning, made a few quick dashes with his pencil, and without adding or changing a letter in the original message, shriveled it down to its very sinews, like this:

> Sarah A. Follinsbee, Dallas Centre, Iowa: Left city 'smorning; delayed by accident; all right; home 'sevening.
> ROGER K. FOLLINSBEE.

"There, that is all right," he said in the cheery, magnetic way these operatives have. "Fifty cents, sir; only 25 cents if we had our own wire into Dallas, sir; we'll have one next spring, too; saves you several dollars, sir. That's right, thank you." And the man went and sat down on a chair by the stove and stared at that operator until the rescuing train came along, as though he was a worker of miracles. And when he got off the train at the junction for Dallas I heard him whispering softly to himself: "Shfollinsbee—cfishn smorning; rotbin smatter; home saftnoon." And I knew that he was practising his lesson and had "caught on."

A Big Congressional Drunk.

Washington Correspondent of Chicago Times.

There is a joint rule in the house and senate which forbids the sale of liquor in the capital building and forbids setting it out in any of the rooms in the way of entertainment. The speaker swears not only to obey but to enforce the rules. The rule has long been openly violated by the restaurants so far as beer is concerned, and has been frequently violated by serving whisky and other strong drinks in tea cups. Frequently one hears an order given in the restaurant for cold tea, and whisky is always served in response. But there occurred recently in one of the committee-rooms that which has made a scandal greater than has been caused by the violations of the rule in the way just mentioned. The house adjourned on Friday at one o'clock. Many members did not understand the zeal with which certain other members urged adjournment. That motive is pretty well understood now. Congressman Ray, of New Hampshire, had caused to be spread in the rooms of the committee on claims a collation the like of which has not been know in the capital for many a day if ever. The great table around which the committee sits was cleared of books, papers and documents, and there were huge dishes of lobster salad and delicious sandwiches. A cold salmon lay on a platter, and there were tempting slices of chicken. No sooner had the house adjourned than some forty members hurried to the committee-room. The committee itself was there. Speaker Keifer was placed at the head of the table and Congressman Hiscock was seated opposite him at the lower end. By and by came the popping of corks and champagne flowed freely. Plainer and more commonly swallowed alcoholic drinks were there, and champagne was unstinted. Glasses were not allowed to remain long emptied, and the results were soon evident. The great doors were thrown open and the strangers were passed by saw and h ar the jovial members.

EASTERN FREIGHT SITUATION.

New York, Aug. 19.—California freights for clipper ships are more quiet than for some time, although not discouragingly so, and the fall trade is looked forward to as likely to be equal to former years, as many manufacturers are holding their shipping their goods or consignments in competition with those merchants who ship exclusively by railroad. Already several consignments of this kind have been made and a number of others will follow in due season. Ships on berth are doing fairly. The W. R. Grace will probably finish by the 25th inst., and the Eureka will follow by the close of the month.

Rates remain firm at last quotations. Tonnage is still scarce, but arrivals of California traders are expected and there will be no want of vessels for requirements of this trade. Isthmus freights are much the same as usual, steamers being used for transportation of such freights as railroads do not care to carry.

Freights at Philadelphia are fairly active, and the Levi C. Wade will finish in course of ten or twelve days.

At Boston the clipper freight market is moderately active, but it is doubtful whether the Enos Soule will get away this month. Railroad freights at Boston are more active than for a long time past. Shipments the past week include 615 packages of fish, and 445 cases of canned goods.

New York Markets.

New York, Aug. 19.—The past week has shown some improvement over its predecessor in the volume of commercial transactions, yet trade drags and is considerably behind previous years, and much behind early promises and public expectation. There has been some improvement in various directions during the past week and in some departments a fair business has been consummated, but the movement has not been general; speculation is mainly confined to those few commodities in which option deals constitute chief transactions, which require but little capital in the way of margins. In grain, lard, petroleum and few other commodities, dealings consist very largely of options, the sales of which however, exert a controlling influence upon prices of actual merchandise. During the week past, breadstuffs have constantly fluctuated, yet in the absence of corners, and with favorable accounts of progressing harvests changes have been material.

Barley—Dull and nominal.

The Kansas Wheat Crop.

Kansas City, Aug. 21.—As threshing progresses in the central part of Kansas where most of the wheat of the state is raised, a larger yield is shown than was anticipated by the state board of agriculture. Twenty-four reports received here from farmers in Clay, Saline, Jefferson, Ellsworth, Rice, Russell, Barton, Ellis, Riley and Sheridan counties run from 16 to 46 bushels per acre, and show an average of 28. The general average of this part of the state is estimated at 23 bushels, and some few crops will run to 35, as was the case in 1878.

WICKED FOR CLERGYMEN.

Rev. ——, Washington, D. C., writes: "I believe it to be all wrong and even wicked for clergymen or other public men to be led into giving testimonials to quack doctors or vile stuffs called medicines, but when a really meritorious article made of valuable remedies known to all, that all physicians use and trust in daily, we should freely commend it. I therefore cheerfully and heartily commend Hop Bitters for the good they have done me and my friends, firmly believing they have no equal for family use. I will not be without them."—New York Baptist Weekly.

WEBSTER'S TWO MISTAKES.

Thurlow Weed Tells How he Twice Failed of Becoming President.

Detroit Post and Tribune.

"It is not generally known," said Thurlow Weed to me, "how near Webster came to being president." "It is generally known," said I, "that he was a candidate for the Whig nomination five times, and missed it every time."

"Yes, I am aware of that, but he came a good deal nearer than that. [illegible] I had always been an admirer of Webster, and I wanted to see him president. [illegible] because he was the man that [illegible] nominated, so that Harrison was [illegible]. I went down to Washington early in the spring and called upon him at his rooms.

"'I think I will be the whig candidate,' he said. 'I expect the nomination, sir, [illegible]

"'It looks like Harrison,' I answered. He almost sneered at the idea.

"'Well, you didn't come up here to tell me that, I hope,' [illegible] in this state.'

"'That was to prevent the appointment of a Clay delegation,' I said, 'and if Harrison is to be nominated. But, Mr. Webster, I went on, 'I have come to Washington to get you to withdraw your name, but to ask you to accept the nomination for vice president in case Harrison shall be selected for the first place.'

"No, he wouldn't listen to such a proposal, and he refused with quite as much spirit as the occasion called for. So I came home, and Harrison was nominated and John Tyler was given the second place on the ticket, and by the death of Harrison Tyler became president a month after the election. Webster saw the fatal mistake he had made, and the next time I saw him he was then Tyler's secretary of state—he confessed it to me.

"Well, curiously enough, that wasn't the last of his fatal mistakes. In 1848 the very same thing happened right over again. In 1844 Clay had been defeated and taken out of the way, and now Webster thought he could walk over the course. During the spring before the nomination I went over to Marshfield.

"'Well, what do you think of it this time?' asked Mr. Webster, with a smile of security.

"'I think this time,' I said, 'that General Taylor will be the man.'

"He was astounded. It didn't look so at all to him. He thought it a very wild guess.

"'Do you seriously think,' he asked, 'that such a man can be nominated?'

"I assured him that I thought it very probable. He remembered his former mistake and smiled, and said at last that he would consult his two best friends, George Ashmun, of Massachusetts, and Senator Wilson, of New Hampshire, and do as they said.

"They were summoned and came. I met them at Mr. Webster's and presented my figures. They were nonplused at first, but came finally to my conclusion that Taylor's nomination was probable and they joined me in advising Mr. Webster to be content with the second place if the first should be beyond his reach. He reluctantly agreed to it, and I was authorized to see the arrangements carried out. Just at that point his son Fletcher came home from town and he ridiculed the idea so energetically and bitterly that his father returned to his original position, and refused to have anything to do with my proposal. Well, the vice presidency went begging. The name of Fillmore was suddenly sprung on the convention and he was put on the ticket. Taylor and he were elected; Taylor died in four months and Fillmore became president, and Webster went down to Washington and served him as secretary of state, as he had similarly served the accidental Tyler. I think the pair of curious mishaps did a good deal to sour him, and perhaps helped to make him reckless in his personal habits."

Trade at Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—The past week has been an uneventful one in business circles. The banks have more money than customers, rates being easy at 5 and 7. Eastern exchanges 25 per cent. discount. Clearings for the week (estimating Saturday) forty millions. The country orders for currency are small and local securities are firmer with some prices a little advanced. Wholesale mercantile trade is getting more lively as crop prospects become better. Outside orders are pretty numerous and the weather has favored merchants. Building materials are stronger on account of the recent advance in lumber. Receipts are falling off somewhat, but sales are brisk at the yards and docks. Dairy products are very steady. Board of trade markets have been rather subdued, but with enough movement to keep brokers and speculators watching every point of the horizon for pointers and causes. To-day there was a general advance caused by two prime reasons, the war complications in Europe, and decreased aggregate receipts with larger shipments.

Wheat was strong. Regular opened a quarter higher, and advanced ⅝ @ ¾, with only a light fluctuation, closed ⅞@1 higher. Sales $1 01⅞@2¾, August; 98⅛@9¾ September; 97⅞@9⅛ October; 97@⅞, Year. Winter was in good demand. Only 127 cars came in and prices were 1@1½ higher. Spring wheat was nominally firmer on call. Sales of regular 500,000 bushels at prices ⅛ lower to ¼ higher. Sales of winter, 30,000 bushels, at prices firmer and ¼ higher. Sales of spring, 35,000 bushels at prices firmer.

Corn—In moderate demand and unsettled; opened comparatively steady and ruled quiet early, then got strong and prices improved until midday, after which they ruled steady to the close. Rates then were ⅝@⅞ higher for cash and August, and 1@1⅛ higher for futures, except year and May, which were only ⅝ higher. Sales of cash, August 76⅛@6¾, September 75⅝@⅞, October 70⅝@⅞, November 65⅞@6⅞, year 61@⅞, May. On call, sales were 570,000 bushels, at prices hardly changed, though year and May were about ¼ off.

Oats were firmer, advance for the day being ¼@½, and closing prices being outside for the day. Sales 41⅛@⅞, August; 33⅞@7¾, September; 35⅛@6¾, October; 35½@36, November; 34⅞@5¾, year; 37¼@3⅞ May. On call sales were 435,000 bushels, at prices ⅛ lower to ¼ higher.

Pork—Moderately active. Offerings fair. Prices firm at 15@20 higher, and improvement well maintained. Sales $21 05@21 25, September; $21 22½@21 40, October; $18 72½@19.00, January. On call, sales were 8250, at prices 5c lower to firm.

Lard—Quite active with free offerings. Prices firm, at 5@10c higher. Closed steady. Sales $12.17½@25 September; $12 25@35, October; 12.15@22½, January. On call, sales were 4750 cases, at prices easy, to 5c higher.

A LIE NAILED.

JULY 17, 1882—10:22 A. M.

Michalitschke Brothers & Co. advertise in the Oregonian that for reasons best known to themselves they have discontinued our agency, and offer their San Francisco Chinese-made Cigars in competition.

In response to same we beg to inform the public that, for good and sufficient reasons, WE CANCELED THEIR ORDERS standing on our books on the 8th day of May last, and REFUSED TO SELL THEM any further, or have anything further to do with them, their application to us notwithstanding. This is where the shoe pinches; hence their animosity.

THE BARLOW ROAD.

THE MT. HOOD AND BARLOW ROAD COMPANY having recently purchased the franchise of the "Old Barlow Road Company," announce that their road across the Cascade Mountains is open for all kinds of travel. The company having constructed a branch road from Sandy P. O. to the Toll Gate up the south bank of the river Sandy, the travel will be able to avoid the long, tedious route over the "Devil's Back Bone" and the five miles of heavy sand on the old road.

The bridges are all in good repair and all the heavy hills are graded. The company are spending large amounts of money on the road, and will spare no pains nor expense in maintaining it as the best road over the Cascade Mountains in this state. Supply stations with provisions at the Toll Gate, Summit Prairie and White River. Tolls reasonable.
